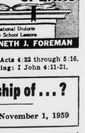
Fellowship of . . . ?

Lesson for November 1, 1959

THE CHURCH is never called the "fellowship of believers" in the New Testament, but it is often called that, nowadays, by Christians. There is a good reason for the name. The early church was a fellowship of believers. This means as the record shows us, that the early Christians were of "one heart and soul." This does not mean that they thought alike, for the writer of Acts carefully avoids saying they were of one mind. They were united not in opinions but in their faith. They were believers-in rather than believers-about. A perfectly unanimous church, all holding the identical opinions in the identical way, would not be a Christian church, but a congregation of parrots. Belief is more than opinion; and in this broader sense the church is indeed a fellowship of believers.



Dr. Foreman

Givers

Is this all? It might be all, if Christian faith were the dead sort of thing some people think it is. But faith, as we see it in the lives of New Testament Christians, never appears by itself. We read that these believers worked out a scheme to eliminate poverty among them. The scheme did not work, for we know that some years later collections were being taken up for the benefit of the Jerusalem church. But all the same, nobody—especially no apostle—arose to say to that church, "All your concern with people's property and their living conditions is off the Christian beam. It is out of our line, it is not a Christian's business to know how other people live. Religion is belief, it is not distribution of worldly goods." There is little doubt that some must have talked that way, because some talk that way today. But the church of those days did find it their business to see to it that no one suffered want.

In an old American city of nearly half a million people there are many churches. The city government early this year decided that they could no longer help people who were unemployed. The consequence was that many families drifted closer and closer to starvation. There was an effort to enlist all the city's churches to help feed these helpless people; but barely half the churches made any contribution or showed any interest. Those count themselves as "believing" churches — but what do they believe?

Doers

Every church congregation is a Fellowship of Listeners, or (if that is expecting too much) a Fellowship of Hearers. They all hear readings from the same Bible, week after week. But the Bible is not merely a book to be listened to. It is not only a book to be believed, either. It is a book to be done. Jesus drew his line, not between hearers and believers, but between hearers and doers. That early church not only distributed food and clothing, they distributed health. They did not simply accept the presence of disease and deformities; they were challenged by such tragedies, they did what they could, and it was a very great deal, to relieve and to do away with them. In short, this first church was a Fellowship of Doers.

● ☐☐ churches are fellowships of people who pray. But a peculiar feature of that early Jerusalem church was that those who belonged to it prayed together. That is, they offered the same prayer together. We do not have to suppose that the prayer in Acts 4 beginning "Sovereign Lord" was literally spoken in unison by the whole collection of believers. But we are not left in doubt that this was the prayer of every one there. When the minister says "Let us pray" he means it—Let US pray. When the minister says "Let us unite in prayer," does the average congregation do it, or do they let him pray along while they think about something else?

Churches are too soon content with being Sitting Fellowships, or Suppering Fellowships; when Believing, Giving, Doing and Praying—what God really calls them together for—go half-done or not done at all.

Memorial Methodist Church

. . . Rev. E. Leon Smith

The Reverend E. Leon Smith, Superintendent of the Methodist Children' Home, Richmond, will be the guest speaker in Memorial Methodist Church at the 11:00 o'clock service this Sunday, with the Sanctuary Choir of the church in the choir loft. Several children of the Home will give special music.

Mr. Smith is the 'Foster Father' of 206 children now being cared for in the Home, composed of an Administration building, Activity building, Dining hall, Pre-school Unit, Infirmary, and four Dormitories for each boys and girls ranging from 6 to 18 years of age. These buildings are all located on a large tract of very valuable property at 3900 West Broad Street, Richmond. Over 1,000 children pass through custody of the Childrens Home during one year, and the far-reaching influences of the home cannot be adequately visualized.

Every member and friend of Memorial Church is urged to hear the superintendent in his plea for the cause of children and youth in this day when so much needs to be done for young people in all conditions of life.

Tonight: The Fall Revival Services continue, with the message given by Dr. John H. Blakemore, pastor of Centenary Church, Lynchburg, on the subject: "Christ For the World." The Mens Chorus of the church will sing several selections. Service sponsored by the Commission on Missions, Mrs. J. N. Jennings, chairman.

Friday evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, the last of the series of the week will feature Rev. P. C. Helmstoller, pastor of the Man Street Methodist Church, Bedford, in a dynamic message on Evangelism.

New Project Listed For Dark Tobacco

The local ASC Office reports that steps are being taken by the Virginia fire-cured tobacco industry in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture to correct what could develop into a serious situation. The problem concerns the high moisture content of Type 21 fire cured tobacco, produced exclusively in Virginia.

Virginia fire-cured leaf has been brought to market by growers with a considerably higher moisture content than the Kentucky and Tennessee types. As a result of the weight losses in drying and packing type 21 are much greater than they are for competing types. This means that buyers get fewer pounds of usable tobacco for each dollar invested in type 21 as compared with types 22 and 23, produced in Kentucky and Tennessee.

In the type 21 area, each 100 pounds purchased yields about 79 pounds packed weight whereas the comparable packed weight of types 22 and 23 is about 92 pounds. The net result is that buyers average paying about $9 more per hundred pounds, packed weight, for type 21 than they do for the Kentucky-Tennessee types.

On October 9, representatives of the Virginia fire-cured tobacco industry farm organizations, and the Extension Service met with U. S. and Virginia State Department of Agriculture officials to make plans for action. A resolution was adopted unanimously by this group to request the Department not to support the price on fire-cured tobacco type 21 which graded "wet." The group also pledged its support in an education campaign to reduce the moisture content of all type 21 tobacco sold.

James E. Warren, of South Hill, Va., who is chairman of the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, presided over the meeting. He appointed the following steering committee to work with the personnel of the Agricultural Extension Service and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) state office to spearhead the educational program: Thos. B. Hall, Sr., president, Dark Tobacco Sales Corp, Farmville; J. Mott Robertson, Virginia Dark Tobacco Warehousemen's Corporation, Lynchburg; G. R. Mathews, Extension Agronomist, Blacksburg; Maury Hubbard, Executive Secretary, Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, Richmond; and John B. Vance, president, Virginia Farmers Union, Richmond. This committee met in Farmville October 23, and developed plans for an informational program concerning this problem.

According to the local ASC office, Appomattox County fire-cured tobacco growers will be informed by letter which will describe in detail the seriousness of this matter and what can be done to help correct it. Doing something about this problem is vital to the best interest of the fire-cured tobacco industry in Appomattox County as well as the state of Virginia.

Open House at A. H. S.

There will be an open house for parents and friends at the Appomattox High Schoool, following the regular monthly meeting of the P.-T. A, on Tuesday, Nov. 10, at 8:00 P. M.

At the "open house," parents will have an opportunity to follow the pupils' daily schedule, and to meet and talk with the various teachers.

Following the 'open house', refreshments will be served in the cafeteria.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT UP IN VIRGINIA

The State Department of Education said today enrollment in public schools during 1959-60 is expected to total about 854,000 children, an increase of about 27,000 over last year's figure.

If the 1959-60 enrollment reaches the Department's estimate, it will be a continuation of a trend started back in 1948-49. Since that year public school enrollment has increased an average of about 25,000 annually. Current estimates by the Department are that by 1961-62, about 902,000 pupils will be enrolled in the public schools in the state, compared to 683,728 in 1948-49.

Between 1948-49 and 1958-59, average daily attendance by pupils in public schools increased from 509,949 to 732,602, and by 1961-62 may total about 818,500, the Department said. (Major state funds are distributed on the basis of average daily attendance rather than on enrollment.) The number of public school teachers increased from 20,470 to 31,719 in the ten-year period and the per capita cost of school operation per pupil in average daily attendance rose from $128.54 to $242.67.

In 1948-49, the average salary of all instructional personnel was $2,215, and in 1958-59, was $4,058. In the same period, the average annual salary for class room teachers has increased from $2,146 to $3,956.

Letter of Thanks

Open letter to all who helped make the Appomattox Elementary School Hallowe'en Party a success:

Not being able to secure a chairman, I was about ready to call the whole program off, when Miss Williams and the entire faculty came to my rescue.

From there on, it was easy going. Parents stepped in, too, taking charge of booths, special events, etc. Candy, cakes and pies and prizes literally flowed in. One of our local bankers offered his services as banker for the evening. Fathers sold candy, balloons and drinks, directed cake walks, and many other events. Children paraded the halls in costumes of every color and description.

When judging of the most unusual costumes took place, it was often difficult to distinguish girl from boy. Everyone who came early enjoyed the wonderful ham and turkey dinner.

Thanks to everyone who did something toward the success of the evening.

—Helen Shouse,
P.-T. A. President.

A man bought a parrot and tried to teach it to talk. Going over to the bird, he repeated for several minutes the words: "Hello, hello."

At the end of the lesson, the parrot opened one eye and answered, drowsily, "Line's busy."

Hunters Get Set For Open General Season

While the general open hunting season on rabbit, quail, grouse, turkey, woodcock, squirrel, deer and elk in Virginia does not come in until November 16, a number of other seasons have either opened or closed recently, according to the state game commission.

For hunters in most counties can hunt with dogs throughout the year but are restricted to an October 1—January 30 gunning season. Raccoon and opossum became fair game statewide on October 15, and may be pursued until January 30.

Archers, who took to the field October 15 after deer, hung up their longbows November 1 but can hunt again for all species of game during the general open seasons. October 31 was also the last day of the open season on clapper rail, gallinules and sora, and November 18 will mark the end of Virginia's dove season.

Ducks, geese, coot and brant will be legal targets at noon on November 20, the waterfowl season extending through January 8. Except in the Dismal Swamp area and in Southwest Virginia, which have earlier seasons, the statewide bear season is November 23 - January 5. Jacksnipe season—latest of all—is November 26 - December 25. Pheasants, muskrat, beaver and otter may not be hunted in Virginia.

HUNTING SEASON IN STATE FORESTS

The Virginia Division of Forestry and Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries have announced that the 1959-60 hunting seasons and bag limits for the Appomattox-Buckingham - Cumberland and the Prince Edward State Forests will conform with the seasons and bag limits for the counties containing these forests, as listed in the current hunting law digest. The sanctuary surrounding the State Game Farm on the Cumberland Forest will be closed to hunting, as will be the 588-acre portion of the Prince Edward State Forest near Green Bay, known as the Gallion Forest.

One dollar stamps required to hunt on these areas may be obtained at the clerk's offices in the aforementioned counties and at State Forest Service offices at Charlottesville, Farmville and Cumberland. Stamps can also be purchased at Gowin's Service Station on Route 24 near forest headquarters, and at the State Game Farm near Cartersville.

State forest maps will be available where stamps are sold.

Woman's Club Dinner

Soft dinner music will be the background for the Smorgasbord dinner sponsored by the Junior and Senior Woman's Clubs of Appomattox, on Thursday, Nov. 12, between 6:30 and 7:30 P. M. The dinner will be held at the cafeteria of the Elementary School. The main purpose of this dinner is to raise money for the state project, the Maxitron. The Maxitron, as was explained in last week's Times-Virginian, is an X-ray machine used in the treatment of cancer and various other diseases. This machine will be placed in the Medical College of Virginia.

The tickets will be on sale immediately by members of the Junior and senior clubs, and will be $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12. All proceeds will go to the Maxitron.

Deadline To Enter Feeder Pigs in Sale

Farmers consigning pigs to the Lynchburg Feeder Pig Sale on December 10, must have nominations in the County Agent's office by Tuesday, November 10. Pigs consigned must weigh between 30 and 125 pounds on sale day.

Pigs must be vaccinated for Cholers and wormed.

This is the first feeder pig sale to be held in this area. Small farmers in particular may find that this will return a higher net income than the conventional way of selling corn at harvest time. Six counties will participate in this sale.

Hanenkrat Honored

Richmond.- Frank T. Hanenkrat, of Appomattox, a junior at the University of Richmond, has been tapped by Scabbard and Blade, national military fraternity.

Hanenkrat, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hanenkrat, was graduated from Appomattox High School, where he was active in the student government and an honor student.

At the University he was treasurer of his freshman class, a member of the varsity rifle team, and held the offices of treasurer and secretary in Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Safety Last

"What's making you look so angry?"

"Nothing much. I cut myself with a safety razor, burned myself with a safety match, and nearly got run over while reading a safety first notice."

In one of the quietest elections in years, only 715 Appomattox County voters went to the polls Tuesday of this week, to elect unopposed candidates to county offices.

A handfull of "write-in" votes were cast.

A total of an even 300 votes were cast at the big Court House precinct here, about one-third of the normal vote.

Senator Chas, T. Moses won reelection to the Virginia State Senate. He is the senior member in point of service in that body, and President Pro Tem of the Senate, and heads several important committees.

Dr .W. A. Pennington, of Buckingham, won a first term in the House of Delegates, replacing the veteran incumbent, John B. Boatwright, who retired after a long and distinguished record of service.

C. W. Smith was re-elected to an eight-year term as clerk of the Appomattox Circuit Court. G. P. Abbitt was re-elected as Commonwealth Attorney, and John G. Plunkett won a second term as county treasurer. John C. Caldwell was elected County Commissioner of the Revenue, and David T. Robertson was elected for another term as sheriff.

E. L. Murphy, R. M. Webb, and O. W. Martin Jr. won new four - year terms as Supervisors.

AUXILIARY HONORS TEACHERS

The American Legion Auxiliary, Unit 104, entertained in honor of all of the Appomattox County teachers and school officials, last evening at the American Legion Home. Mrs. R. D. Robinson, Community Service Chairman of the Unit, was in charge of arrangements for this occasion, which is sponsored annually by the Auxiliary. She was assisted by all members.

Mrs. Wiley Morris presented the teachers to the officers of the Unit, who formed the receiving line, and included the president, Mrs. C. T. Moses, Jr.; vice - president, Mrs. Shearer Robertson; secretary, Mrs. Ivey Holland; treasurer, Mrs. Emile Bruce, and Mrs. Martin Webb, historian. Mrs. Henry Pack served at the punch bowl, and was assisted by Mrs. Clifford Harvey and Mrs. Scott Moore. Miss Virginia Carolyn Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Caldwell, Jr., presented a medley of soft background piano music.

The Legion Home was beautifully decorated with autumn floral arrangements and candelight for this occasion.
